19th Century

This is the Second Edition (2019) of Stories from History's Dust Bin, the winner of the Arizona Book of the Year Award for 2016. What is new in this edition, besides a review of all stories for new and/or updated information, is the addition of footnotes, end-of-story comments, a cross-referencing with other Dust Bin books and a change in organization of the stories from chronological to alphabetical. Inside are 122 non-fiction stories, each readable in fifteen minutes or less. The books make great companions for business or vacation travel, are excellent for reading poolside or next to the fireplace, as substitutes for in-flight or waiting room magazines, and perfect for end-of-day relaxation. The contents feature the little-known and unusual, such as the story of Joshua Norton (front cover) who arrived in San Francisco in 1849 with a fist full of inherited money. After losing all of his money on market speculation, he disappeared for a decade before returning to San Francisco as "Norton I, Emperor of America," and becoming one of that city's most colorful citizens. Then there's the story of Mary Toft who, in 1726, had members of King George's court and others convinced she had given birth to rabbits, and whose ludicrous story gave rise to Alexander Pope's poem that begins: Most true it is, I dare to say / E'er since the days of Eve. The weakest woman sometimes may / The wisest man deceive. Note: Not all footnotes are available in the ebook edition. Richly anecdotal and always provocative, this sharp, insightful, opinionated book explores the rise--and arrested development--of rock and roll over the last half century. Vicki and Tommy aren't just enemies on the ice--they're explosive off it too...in more ways than one. Noah Viklund doesn't play hockey in order to make friends. That's not what the game means to him. And he especially can't stand the Sea Dog's new rookie, Tommy Tremblay. After all, Tommy's the sort of player that gets under Vicki's skin. He's reckless. He's wild. And he won't take anything seriously. But when a chance meeting during the offseason shows Vicki what a good boy Tommy can be for him, it becomes increasingly difficult to keep seeing him as the bad guy. After all, how can he hate the only man who has ever made him feel worthy? Tommy is tired of Vicki's stuck-up, holier-than-thou attitude. He's fought hard to get where he is, and he's not going to let some tightly wound guy make him feel like he doesn't deserve his hard-won success. So, he can't explain why they keep falling into bed together, or why he's starting to fall for the man he's supposed to hate. They both know this shouldn't work, but the more they try to push each other away, the more their souls seem to connect. The question is, will they find a way for their hearts to be vulnerable and let love in? Open Ice Hit is a steamy MM romance set between the fictional NHL teams of the Brooklyn Phantoms and the Queens Sea Dogs. It contains hate that might not quite be hate, team as found family, sick goals from soft hands, some really stinky marine animals, praise kink a mile wide, and an unexpected journey that might just be worth taking. The world is experiencing an unprecedented period of change and growth through all the electronic and technological developments and everyone on the planet has been impacted. What was once 'science fiction', today it is a reality. This book explores the world of many of once unthinkable advancements by explaining current technologies in great detail. Each chapter focuses on a different aspect - Machine Vision, Pattern Analysis and Image Processing - Advanced Trends in Computational Intelligence and Data Analytics - Futuristic Communication Technologies - Disruptive

Technologies for Future Sustainability. The chapters include the list of topics that spans all the areas of smart intelligent systems and computing such as: Data Mining with Soft Computing, Evolutionary Computing, Quantum Computing, Expert Systems, Next Generation Communication, Blockchain and Trust Management, Intelligent Biometrics, Multi-Valued Logical Systems, Cloud Computing and security etc. An extensive list of bibliographic references at the end of each chapter guides the reader to probe further into application area of interest to him/her. Dust Bin Bob is back after saving the day for the Beatles in Manila, except this time he's hanging in Morocco with Brian Jones, the doomed original guitarist of the Rolling Stones. Brian buys an antique mirror used for the esoteric art of mirror gazing. What Brian sees in the mirror frightens him and sets the scene for his untimely death. Was he murdered? Find out in the sequel to Rubber Soul, Painted Black. Praise for Greg Kihn "Rubber Soul is a magical mystery tour de force by Greg Kihn, a rocker who obviously has a way with words as well as music. His imagined story about the Beatles is fast-moving, full of twists and tension, and musical nuggets and insights. Great story-telling set to a Fab-four beat." -Ben

Fong Torres, former senior editor of Rolling Stone "There's no one more qualified to write a rock-and-roll novel than Greg Kihn. He's the real deal and at his Kihntillating best in this book." -Guy Kawasaki, former chief evangelist of Apple "Rubber Soul captures what Rock-n-Roll is all about-and Greg Kihn would certainly know This nearly-true story of the Beatles is pure magic and I couldn't turn the pages fast enough." -Eddie Money "I've known Greg Kihn for decades and he's never ever run out of amazing tales, stories, and recollections. I never knew which ones were real, true, folk-lore, imagined, or of pipe dreams, Kihn-a-sized. It's all to his readers' benefit he writes fiction." -Rick Nielsen, Cheap Trick NBC called Greg Kihn "Rock's True Renaissance Man." His career stretches from the dawn of punk and indie rock to the discos of the 1980s to the glory days of MTV. As a pioneer with the legendary Beserkley Records, he helped write the book on revolutionary West Coast rock 'n' roll. In the 1990s Greg turned his attention to writing fiction. He published four novels and a handful of short stories in various anthologies, and edited a compilation of original fiction by famous musicians. Horror Show was nominated for the Bram Stoker Award for Best First Novel. This vast collection of stories about well-known and long-forgotten personalities is as informative as it is interesting. It is a must-read, a wealth of unique information about people and events that is intellectually challenging, highly entertaining, and sprinkled appropriately with personal humor. Dr. Armand A. Lakner, Apollo 11 Mission, Systems Reliability Manager, NASA (Retired), and author of From Mauthausen to the Moon What Wayne Winterton has given us is both an educators research of history coupled with a good guys chuckling look at unforgettable people, all encapsulated in very readable short stories. Slim Randles, syndicated columnist, author of Sun Dog Days" and "Ravens Prey, and recipient of the 2012 Rounders Award This is the Second Edition (2019) of Stories from History's Dust Bin, the winner of the Arizona Book of the Year Award for 2016. What is new in this edition, besides a review of all stories for new and/or updated information, is the addition of footnotes, end-of-story comments, a cross-referencing with other Dust Bin books and, in response to readers, a change in the organization of the stories from chronological to alphabetical. Inside are 122 non-fiction stories, each readable in fifteen minutes or less. The books make great companions for business or vacation travel, are excellent for reading poolside or next to the fireplace, as substitutes for in-flight or waiting room magazines and perfect for end-of-day relaxation. The contents feature the little known and unusual, such as the story of Laura Keene (front cover), the actress in the play that President Lincoln was enjoying when he was assassinated. Keene made her way to the Presidential Box, where she was recognized by her theatrical costume. There, she cradled the president's head against her shoulder until he was taken from the theater, thus assuring herself at least an asterisk when historians put pen to paper in recording the historical event. And the Story of composer Franz Haydn, whose head was stolen just as his body was about to be lowered into its grave in 1809. It took 145 years, lots of research, and a determined family to bring about the reunion, but it happened in 1954 when Haydn's tomb in Eisenstadt, Austria was opened, and his body and head were again reunited. Note: Not all footnotes are available in the ebook edition. "How much history can be communicated by pressure on a guitar string?" Robert Palmer wondered in Deep Blues. Greil Marcus answers here: more than we will ever know. It is the history in the riff, in the movie or novel or photograph, in the actor's pose or critic's posturing--in short, the history in cultural happenstance--that Marcus reveals here, exposing along the way the distortions and denials that keep us oblivious if not immune to its lessons. Whether writing about the Beat Generation or Umberto Eco, Picasso's Guernica or the massacre in Tiananmen Square, The Manchurian Candidate or John Wayne's acting, Eric Ambler's antifascist thrillers or Camille Paglia, Marcus uncovers the histories embedded in our cultural moments and acts, and shows how, through our reading of the truths our culture tells and those it twists and conceals, we situate ourselves in that history and in the world. Rarely has a history lesson been so exhilarating. With the startling insights and electric style that have made him our foremost writer on American music, Marcus brings back to life the cultural events that have defined us and our time, the social milieu in which they took place, and the individuals engaged in them. As he does so, we see that these cultural instances--as lofty as The Book of J, as humble as a TV movie about Jan and Dean, as fleeting as a few words spoken at the height of the Berkeley Free Speech Movement, as enduring as a Paleolithic painting--often have more to tell us than the master-narratives so often passed off as faultless representations of the past. Again and again Marcus skewers the widespread assumption that history exists only in the past, that it is behind us, relegated to the dustbin. Here we see instead that history is very much with us, being made and unmade every day, and unless we recognize it our future will be as cramped and impoverished as our present sense of the past. Ask the Dust is a virtuoso performance by an influential master of the twentieth-century American novel. It is the story of Arturo Bandini, a young writer in 1930s Los Angeles who falls hard for the elusive, mocking, unstable Camilla Lopez, a Mexican waitress. Struggling to survive, he perseveres until, at last, his first novel is published. But the bright light of success is extinguished when Camilla has a nervous breakdown and disappears . . . and Bandini forever rejects the writer's life he fought so hard to attain. A collection of 101 historical short stories by Dr. Wayne Winterton, the award-winning author of Stories from History's Dust Bin. The stories feature unusual or forgotten facts, and more, in the lives of the famous, the infamous, and the obscure. The stories are short, about five to ten minutes reading time per story, and there is no "right way" to read the book. You can start at the beginning and read to the end, or pick and choose the stories that interest you most, taking an occasional side trip to expand your knowledge when you're feeling adventuresome. The book opens with a story about Johnny Ace who could have been America's first Rock 'n' Roll star had he not died of an accidental or intentional gunshot to the head in 1954; and closes with a story about Frank Zamboni, the very persistent and creative man behind the machine that resurfaces the ice between hockey periods. Between the Ace-to-Zamboni bookends, are ninety-nine more fascinating, easy-to-read stories. There's the story of Joshua Chamberlain, whose singular action near the Appomattox Court House on April 9, 1865, resulted in his being called the knightliest soldier of the Civil War; and the story of Rosalie Duthe (1748-1830), who holds the dubious honor of being the world's first officially certifiable dumb blonde; and the story of Moulton Taylor who designed and built a flying car that was approved by the Civil Aeronautics Authority in 1950, a car that got off the ground and flew into television and aviation history - and will forever be a prime example of American ingenuity. The stories are often surprising, always interesting and guaranteed entertaining, perfect for curled-up nighttime reading, convalescing, when traveling on vacation, whenever a good read is in order. Return to the world of His Dark Materials—now an HBO original series starring Dafne Keen, Ruth Wilson, Andrew

Scott, and Lin-Manuel Miranda—in the second volume of Philip Pullman’s new bestselling masterwork The Book of Dust. The windows between the many worlds have been sealed and the momentous adventures of Lyra Silvertongue’s youth are long behind her—or so she thought. Lyra is now a twenty-year-old undergraduate at St. Sophia’s College and intrigue is swirling around her once more. Her daemon Pantalaimon is witness to a brutal murder, and the dying man entrusts them with secrets that carry echoes from their past. The more Lyra is drawn into these mysteries, the less she is sure of. Even the events of her own past come into question when she learns of Malcolm Polstead’s role in bringing her to Jordan College. Now Lyra and Malcolm will travel far beyond the confines of Oxford, across Europe and into the Levant, searching for a city haunted by daemons, and a desert said to hold the truth of Dust. The dangers they face will challenge everything they thought they knew about the world, and about themselves. Praise for The Book of Dust “It’s a stunning achievement, this universe Pullman has created and continues to build on.” —The New York Times “Pullman’s writing is simple, unpretentious, beautiful, true. The conclusion to The Book of Dust can’t come soon enough.”—The Washington Post Shortlisted for the 2019 Booker Prize Named a Best Book of the Year by Bookpage, NPR, Washington Post, and The Economist A moving novel on the power of friendship in our darkest times, from internationally renowned writer and speaker Elif Shafak. In the pulsating moments after she has been murdered and left in a dumpster outside Istanbul, Tequila Leila enters a state of heightened awareness. Her heart has stopped beating but her brain is still active—for 10 minutes 38 seconds. While the Turkish sun rises and her friends sleep soundly nearby, she remembers her life—and the lives of others, outcasts like her. Tequila Leila's memories bring us back to her childhood in the provinces, a highly oppressive milieu with religion and traditions, shaped by a polygamous family with two mothers and an increasingly authoritarian father. Escaping to Istanbul, Leila makes her way into the sordid industry of sex trafficking, finding a home in the city's historic Street of Brothels. This is a dark, violent world, but Leila is tough and open to beauty, light, and the essential bonds of friendship. In Tequila Leila's death, the secrets and wonders of modern Istanbul come to life, painted vividly by the captivating tales of how Leila came to know and be loved by her friends. As her epic journey to the afterlife comes to an end, it is her chosen family who brings her story to a buoyant and breathtaking conclusion. Stories from History's Dust Bin, Second Edition, Volume 1, is part of a 3-volume set of historical short stories. Each volume contains four months' worth of stories, each readable in about fifteen minutes. The books make great travel companions, super for poolside or fireplace, as substitutes for in-flight or waiting room magazines, and perfect for end-of-day relaxation. The stories feature the little-known and unusual, such as Joshua Norton (see book cover) who arrived in San Francisco from South Africa with a fist-full of money, lost all of it trying to get rich quick, disappeared for a decade before returning and recasting himself as Norton I, the Emperor of America, and becoming one of San Francisco's most colorful citizens. And Mary Toft who, in 1726, had members of King George's court (and others), convinced she had given birth to rabbits. And Margaret Winkler, a distributor of silent movies and cartoons, who, in 1923, hired an unknown 22-year-old on the strength of a cartoon he'd drawn in his uncle's garage, and thus kick-started Walt Disney's career. Reprint of the original, first published in 1867. Joining the newly formed NYPD in 1845, Timothy reluctantly assumes his duties near the notorious Five Points slum, where in the middle of the night he hears a little girl's claim that dozens of bodies have been buried in a local forest. 1980s rock icon Greg Kihn spins a magical mystery tour headlined by the Beatles, who find themselves in jeopardy when murder rocks their world. For Bob "Dust Bin" Dingle, R&B is a passion his roughneck brothers don't understand. But when a mop-haired group of Liverpudlians named John, Paul, George, and Ringo stumble into Dust Bin Bob's secondhand shop on Penny Lane and gawk at his sparkling collection of 45s, everyone's in perfect harmony. Stirred by the thumping backbeats of Chuck Berry, Little Richard, and Bo Diddley, the Fab Four rocket to stardom. As Beatlemania catapults them from the Cavern Club to The Ed Sullivan Show in record time, the lads show they've also got a talent for getting into trouble. Fortunately, Dust Bin Bob has a way of showing up just in time to lend them a hand. But when the world tour for Rubber Soul lands in the Philippines, trouble turns deadly. Exhausted from an eight-days-a-week schedule, the fab four snub a personal invite from Imelda Marcos, who just won't let it be. Suddenly, thousands of fans turn menacing, and murder is in the air. It's up to Dust Bin Bob to sort out the mess if they to get back on the plane alive . . . Spencer and his team of Rebels must face the combined evil of the Founding Witches and the Sweepers, or the world is doomed to fall under the control of the sinister Bureau of Educational Maintenance. Meet Dustbin the dog in Dustbin. Dustbin eats anything and everything. He likes chewing shoes, books, bones, tables and chairs. It's his favourite thing to do. What will happen when Dustbin is put on a diet? TreeTops Fiction contains engaging novels from top authors and illustrators with the variety children need to develop a love of reading! Private McAuslan was 'the biggest walking disaster to hit the Army'. Loosely based on his own experiences in a Scottish regiment, and written with rare humour, a sense of the ludicrous and real affection for soldiering, this is the third volume of George MacDonald Fraser's McAuslan trilogy. April knows she was abandoned in a rubbish bin as a newborn baby, fourteen years ago. Now she's happily settled with her foster mother, Marion - but there's a part of April that's desperate to know where she really came from, and who she really is. If only she could remember her real mother - or even find her . . . An engrossing, engaging and highly moving novel from the acclaimed bestseller Jacqueline Wilson. The search for the author's identity takes Yarnspinner to Bookholm—the so-called City of Dreaming Books. On entering its streets, our hero feels as if he has opened the door of a gigantic second-hand bookshop. His nostrils are assailed by clouds of book dust, the stimulating scent of ancient leather, and the tang of printer's ink. Soon, though, Yarnspinner falls into the clutches of the city's evil genius, Pfistomel Smyke, who treacherously maroons him in the labyrinthine catacombs underneath the city, where reading books can be genuinely dangerous. In The City of Dreaming Books, Walter Moers transports us to a magical world where reading is a remarkable adventure. Only those intrepid souls who are prepared to join Yarnspinner on his perilous journey should read this book. We wish the rest of you a long, safe, unutterably dull and boring life! Photographer O. N. Pruitt (1891–1967) was for some forty years the de facto documentarian of Lowndes County, Mississippi, and its county seat, Columbus--known to locals as "Possum Town." His body of work recalls many FSA photographers, but Pruitt was not an outsider with an agenda; he was a community member with intimate knowledge of the town and its residents. He photographed his fellow white citizens and Black ones as well, in circumstances ranging from the mundane to the horrific: family picnics, parades, river baptisms, carnivals, fires, funerals, two of Mississippi's last public and legal executions by hanging, and a lynching. From formal portraits to candid images of events in the moment, Pruitt's documentary of a specific yet representative southern town offers viewers today an invitation to meditate on the interrelations of photography, community, race, and historical memory. Columbus native Berkley Hudson was photographed by

Pruitt, and for more than three decades he has considered and curated Pruitt's expansive archive, both as a scholar of media and visual journalism and as a community member. This stunning book presents Pruitt's photography as never before, combining more than 190 images with a biographical introduction and Hudson's short essays and reflective captions on subjects such as religion, ethnic identity, the ordinary graces of everyday life, and the exercise of brutal power. Do you leave food on your plate at mealtimes? If you do, beware, it could lead to all sorts of trouble . . . The dad in this book has a penchant for leftover food - even the bits that are soggy and chewed! He eats EVERYTHING - unfinished sandwiches, cold soggy fries, unwanted broccoli, half eaten pies! But when, one day, he accidentally guzzles the cat's Puss-Pep-Up Powder, strange things start to happen . . . The 'Black Queen' is what Billy calls his shadowy next-door neighbour. She always wears a black cloak and a wide-brimmed black hat. She lurks about her garden, alone except for her black cat. Scarily for Billy, the Black Queen befriends him and asks him to look after her cat while she's away. Billy can't resist the opportunity to peek inside her house. There are chessboards scattered everywhere. Who is the Black Queen and what sort of game is she playing? Billy thinks he knows... Dust Bin Bob is back after saving the day for the Beatles in Manila, except this time he's hanging in Morocco with Brian Jones, the doomed original guitarist of the Rolling Stones. Brian buys an antique mirror used for the esoteric art of mirror gazing. What Brian sees in the mirror frightens him and sets the scene for his untimely death. Was he murdered? Find out in the sequel to Rubber Soul, Painted Black. Ever noticed that women don't feature much in history books, and wondered why? Then this is the book for you. In The Trouble with Women, feminist artist Jacky

Fleming illustrates how the opinions of supposed male geniuses, such as Charles Darwin (who believed that women have smaller brains than men) and John Ruskin (who believed that women's main function was to praise men), have shaped the fate of women through history, confining them to a life of domesticity and very little else. Get ready to laugh, wince, and rescue forgotten women from the "dustbin of history," while keeping a close eye out for tell-tale "genius hair." From Ace to Zamboni is a collection of 101 historical short stories by Dr. Wayne Winterton, the award-winning author of Stories from History's Dust Bin, stories that
